Selected Recent Journal Publications

I have published 54 papers in total across the social sciences (36 as lead or sole author). A concern with well-being in a broad sense underpins much of this work. Some specific topics that I have published frequently on include: the economics of happiness, nudging, immigration, identity economics, farmer behaviour, eco-innovation, labour and health economics. This research has been published in leading economics journals such as the European Economic Review, Journal of Economic Behavior and Organisation, Oxford Economic Papers and Economic Inquiry as well as a variety of leading field journals such as the American Journal of Agricultural Economics, Land Economics and Ecological Economics. I have also published papers in leading interdisciplinary journals such as Social Science and Medicine, Global Environmental Change, Work, Employment and Society and Journal of Rural Studies. Please see below for a recent selection of papers.
